In a document dated 28 October 2004, the following events were noted:

052's behavior has become predictable since his initial demands were conceded to after his late May/early June hunger strike. He continues to disrupt the Brig operations by refusing to be compliant—even as new demands have been rewarded. I've received multiple pages that include two sets of recent demands—one set has fourteen demands in all. The items demanded and the substance of it is irrelevant. The issue is his behavior and his goals. As mention, the behavior is one of disruption and non-compliance. His goals—I assess—are to conduct his Jihad against the Infidels on the only "battlefield" available to him—the Brig itself. Another goal is to test the limits of his captors and his confinement. There are two relevant points regarding his behavior that have come to the surface. The most important is that he acknowledged during this month's Mental Health Check that he will continue to be disruptive "to get his points across". The other point is that 052 stated he knew "the Interrogator's laws are no longer in place"—confirmation of his awareness that his status has drastically changed.
